Interesting Pictures Showing Two Unique Phases of War Work at the Front

A FRENCH FIELD TELEPHONE POST

Appearance to the contrary notwithstanding, this is a telephone booth. Honestly! The military authorities call it an observation post and the soldiers who have to take turns in it call it the limit. But that's what it is-a booth. The soldier you see at the extrance is having a quiet little heart-to-heart chat on doings in that immediate vicinity with some superior lounging at a desk somewhere safely behind the lines. The picture was taken on the Belgian front.

$150,000—reached the height of activity today, following speeches of encouragement last night at the Y. M. C. A., where President Wilson sent his check for $100 as his contribution to the fund.

With but a little more than a third of the desired amount raised, the ten teams went at the job today with the realisation that for the first time since the war started Washington is about to drop behind in its quota of war service funds. In the sale of Liberty loan bonds the District oversubscribed its quota, and leaders in the Y. M. C. A. war service movement were hopeful today that this high record would be upheld.

Total subscriptions yesterday

Total subscriptions yesterday amounted to $12,941, bringing the Washington total to date to $65,990 of the Capital's $150,000 allotment.

But the judge was not regarded as a severe man unless occasion demanded. Then he went the limit. He possessed a keen insight into human nature, and had a fine sense of justice.

Judge Cuton resigned to take a position in the legal department of the commission recently created to take the custody of enemy alien property in this country. His successor is Luther H. Thompson.
